

Walt Disney World Autograph Ideas

Collecting character autographs is a “must do” for every Walt Disney World vacation. You can purchase Walt Disney World autograph books from the Disney Store, as well as Etsy. Or, you can get creative and make your own! I have some ideas for you below!

Picture Mat. Take the mat for a picture frame around the parks with you. You could put it in your touring bag-it would fit well in a backpack. Think 5×7 or 8×10 size. Then, have select characters sign it. For example, get all the “classic” characters to sign it-like at the EPCOT Character Spot or in Pete’s Silly Sideshow at Magic Kingdom. Add a picture of you and Mickey when you get home.

Pillowcase. Make sure you take a fabric marker or sharpies for this one. If your child has Disney themed bedding-even better! A pillowcase won’t take up much room in your touring bag, and it’s something you’ll have for a long time. Sweet dreams every night with your child’s favorite character!

Mouse Ears. Disney sells Mouse Ears in a variety of colors-some of which are great for autographing. These are so cute! My daughter’s first ears are pink, with her name embroidered on them. How I WISH I had taken them around to have them autographed! A sharpie works well for these, and on black Mouse Ears the silver or white markers are ideal.

Postcards. Postcards are cheap, and easy to carry around. Have the characters sign postcards, and stash them away for later. You can mail them to your child between trips, put them in a surprise package to announce your next Disney vacation, or use them in a scrapbook!

Canvas Tote Bag. You can pick these up to personalize at most craft stores-like Michael’s or Hobby Lobby. Again, be sure to use fabric markers or sharpies. You could collect A LOT of autographs on a tote bag. You’ll be able to use it for a library book bag, running errands around town, etc.

Squares of Fabric. Cut out quilt squares, and take them along with you to the parks. The characters can autograph them, and when you get home, stitch them together to make a blanket. Make sure they are big enough for the characters to sign, or you could cut them down when you get home.

Wood Frames. Visiting the fairies in Pixie Hollow? Take along some wooden frames from the craft store. After they sign them, you can add some glitter paint when you get home-gives it a sort of “pixie dust” look :).

Autograph Books. These aren’t super unique, but if you make your own they can be! With some scrapbook paper, stickers, a hole punch, and some ribbon you’ll have a DIY Autograph Book in no time. My kids all have traditional ones from the Disney parks-and we love them. There’s something nostalgic about them!
